SUMMARY

I've been fascinated by technology since I was a kid, starting around age 10 when I began exploring how games worked at a local computer café. When I got my own PC a couple of years later, I started creating simple games and websites, and my passion for learning about tech has continued ever since. Now, as an Information Systems graduate from ZDSPGC, I've developed solid skills in programming and problem-solving, built through both formal education and hands-on experience. My curiosity and dedication to technology keep driving me to grow and improve every day.
